

How do I determine if Mount Mercy owns a particular journal?

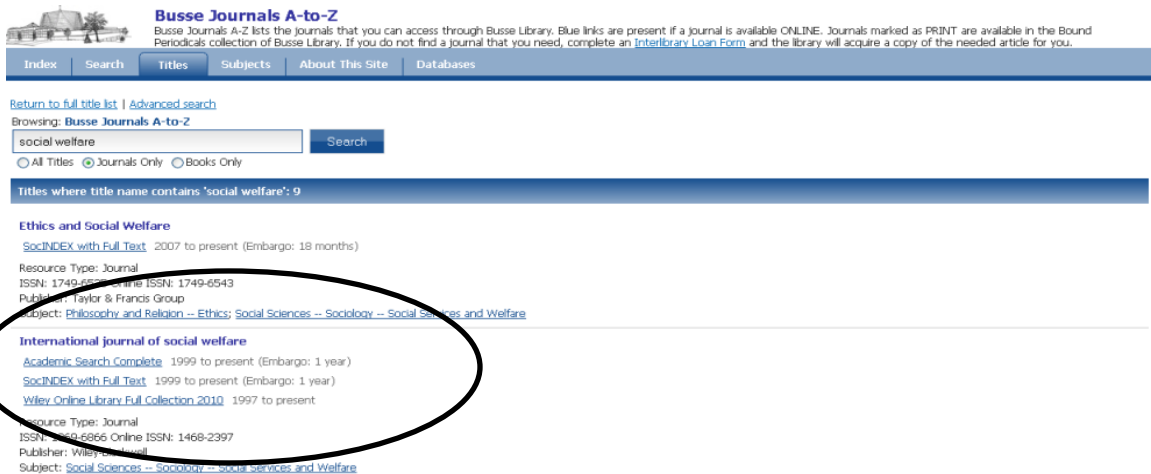

Step One: Select “Journals” from the “Find Materials” column on the Busse Library homepage or from the “Library” tab in MyCampus.

Step Two: The Busse Journals A-to-Z interface is now live. Search by subject using the top menu. Search by title using the search form; select “Journals only” if this fact applies. You can also select a portion of the alphabet for browsing.

Step Three: Titles containing the search terms are displayed. Scroll to the matching publication. Entries show database locations, years of coverage, and publishing details.

Step Four: A single entry may also display Busse Library holdings (print). Years of coverage will be shown. Embargos indicate publisher restrictions; current content is held for the particular time period before its release.

Step Six: The interface now displays the publication as the source for all content (“JN”). Insert search terms, select applicable limiters, and conduct your search in EBSCO.
